THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

July 18, 1994

Dear Mr. Gannon:

Thank you for the thousands of petitions collected in the Cleveland area in support of your campaign for Ireland's "Peace with Justice" which you, Representative Stokes and representatives of your Irish-American community delivered to the White House.

I welcome the interest you and your 3,000 fellow petitioners have taken in the search for peace and reconciliation in Northern Ireland and in the policy of my Administration. The Joint Declaration signed by Prime Minister Reynolds and Prime Minister Major continues to offer the best framework for a peaceful resolution of the conflict. The submission of questions about the Joint Declaration by Sinn Fein and the British Government's response marked a further positive step. I continue to urge all who have yet to do so to renounce the use of violence as a means of advancing political goals and to support actively the efforts of the Irish and British governments to find a lasting, peaceful solution to the conflict in Northern Ireland.

Again, I appreciate your encouragement and continued engagement.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton^A

Mr. Sean Gannon
